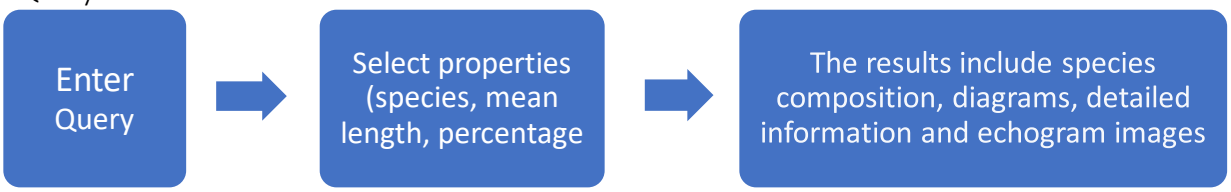
User manual

Writing purpose： This document is a user manual for all users of the Echogramlib application at the product use level. Users can understand all the functions of the system and user permissions by reading the revised document.

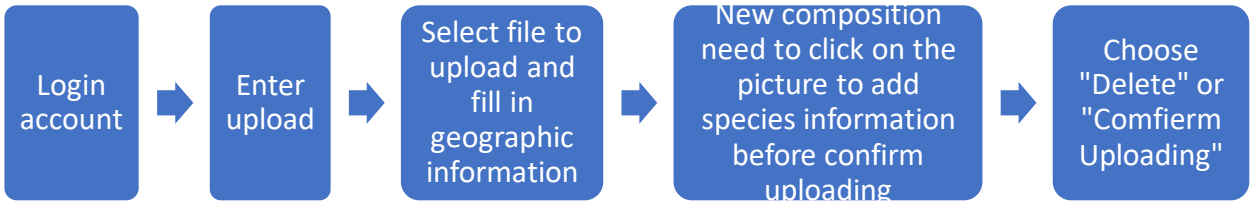
Development team： Team Echo

Function description ：

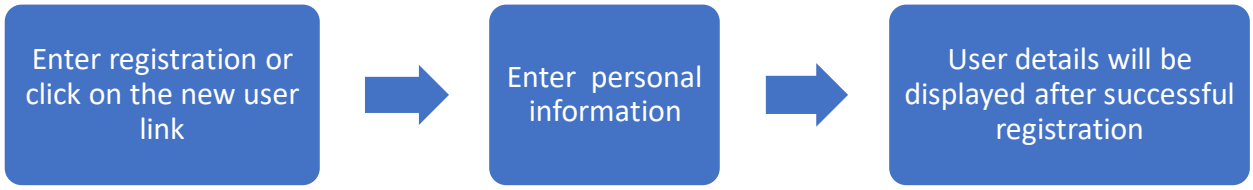
1:Query :



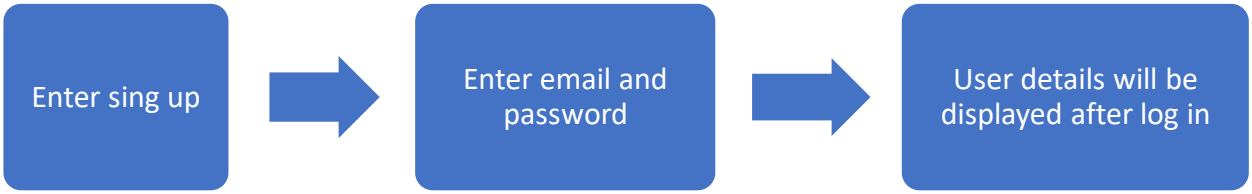
2:Upload：



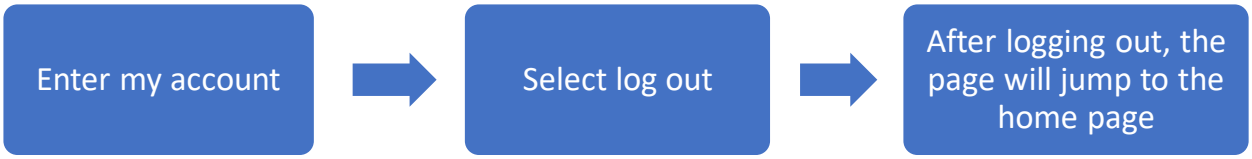
3: Registered：



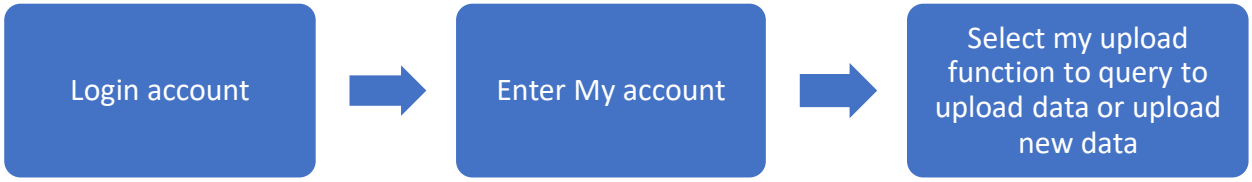
4.Sing up：



5.Log out：



6. Account management：



Account permissions ：

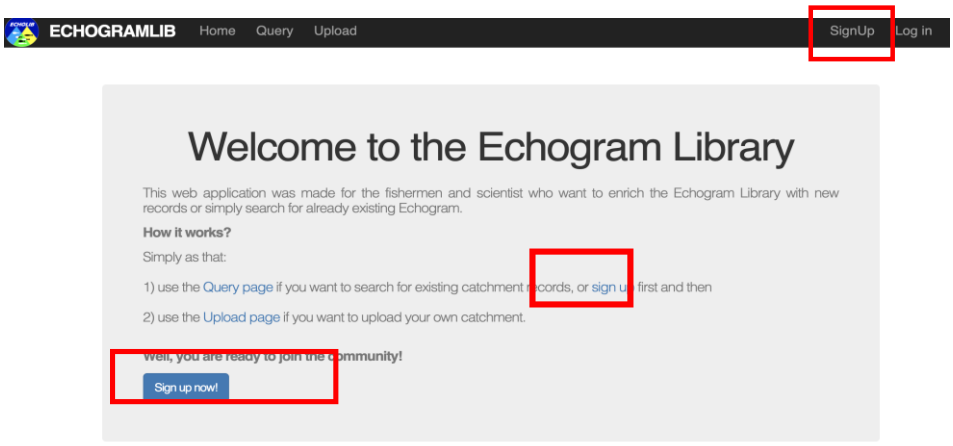
1.Ordinary account: After logging in with an ordinary account, you can upload data and view your upload record.

2.Administrator: After logging in, the administrator account can manage the data uploaded by the ordinary account based on the functions of the ordinary account. Review the data uploaded by users through reject and accept permissions.

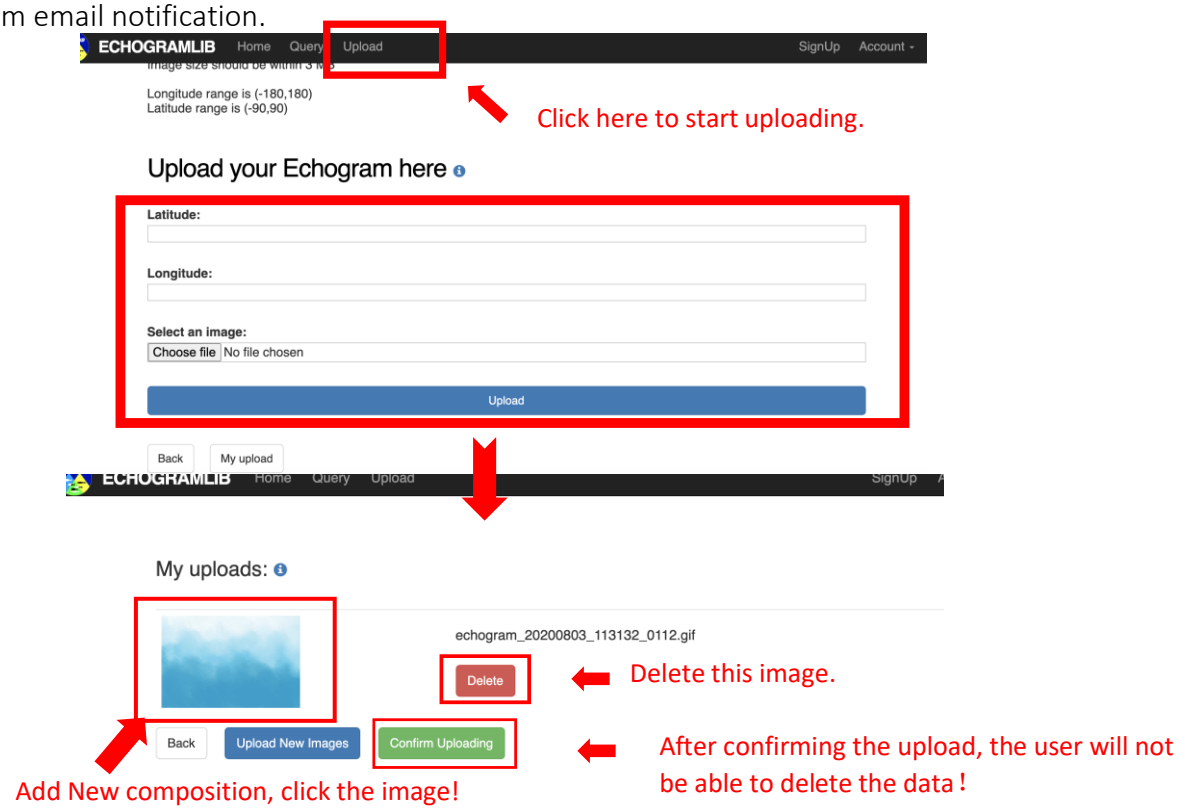
Operation information:

1.User operation example:

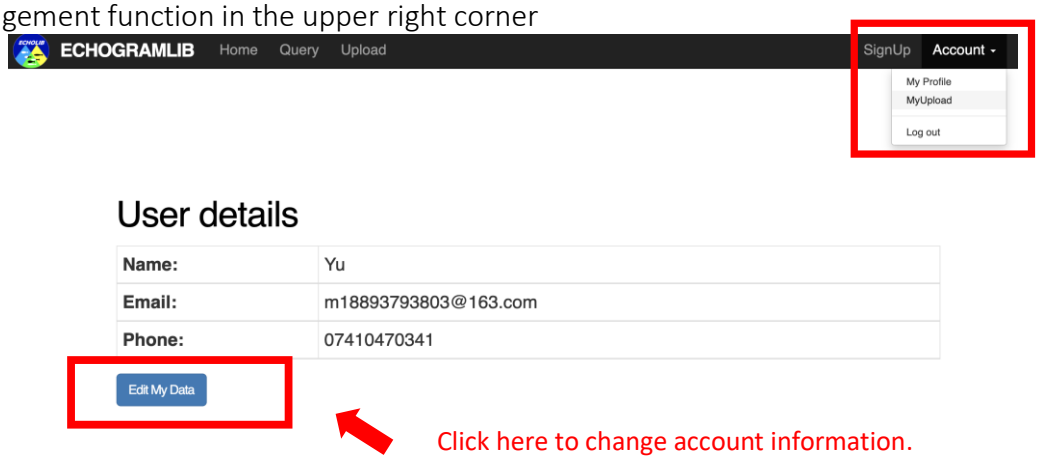
New users: New users can enter the new user registration page through the homepage link, the login page link, and the registration function button, and complete the registration by email and password



Regular users: Enter account information in the user login interface, and then use the data upload function after confirmation. After the data upload is successful, you will receive a system email notification.



Administrator: The administrator will receive notification emails sent by the system after regular users upload data.

2. Change account information


After the user has logged in, they can reset the user information through the account management function in the upper right corner